Business members have unique needs when it comes to their digital banking. They need a platform that provides the right solutions that help them compete while providing a secure channel for business communication and payments to flow through.

Banno Business is a scalable solution that provides credit unions with valuable entitlements that allow them to support small-to-medium-sized businesses. These members often need to provide access to their business accounts to members of their business team—like accountants, office managers and business colleagues. With a retail Banno account, it's not possible to grant and support access for the users in a hierarchy that allows for various authorization levels and centralized user management. Banno Business is a solution that is the right fit.

HOW IT WORKS

Banno Business provides the functionality businesses need beyond a retail member account. The interface mirrors a retail account using Banno and can provide business users with the ability to easily switch between their personal and business profiles. Business users can also opt to enable Banno Conversations for Business for secure collaboration and communication.

The Entitlements and Permissions functionality allows the business customer to provide user access and permissions without requiring the user be on the business account at the credit union. This Banno Business is a digital banking interface designed for small-to-medium-sized businesses, though it can be scaled for businesses of all sizes. Credit unions are provided with valuable entitlements to provide this solution to their business members.

- Empower business members to provide access to others on their business team
- Mirror Banno retail accounts
- Allow members to toggle between personal and business profiles
- Provide members access to Banno Conversations for Business to connect with their customers

"Business members need solutions that help them easily and efficiently manage their business banking. That includes managing who has access to accounts and at what levels. Banno Business empowers business members to provide that access on-the-go and is an intuitive, easy-to-use solution for them to manage their accounts anytime, anywhere."
